P R O C E E D I N G S

THE COURT: Okay. We are on the record now in 1:16CV425, United States of America versus State of North Carolina, et al.

I understand there are a number of folks on the phone. Let me go ahead and have everyone note your appearance. Let me start with the Plaintiff, United States. Who is appearing today?

MR. RAND: Good afternoon, Judge Schroeder. This is Ripley Rand with the U.S. Attorney's Office, and Corey Stoughton from the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice is also on the call, as well as I believe some other folks.

MS. STOUGHTON: Your Honor, this is Corey Stoughton. I'm here with Lori Kisch, Torey Cummings, Taryn Null, and Dwayne Bensing from the Civil Rights Division.

THE COURT: All right. Welcome. How about for the UNC Defendants, UNC and the Board of Governors?

MR. FRANCISCO: This is Noel Francisco of Jones Day for UNC and the UNC Board of Governors. Also appearing in the case with me are James Burnham of Jones Day and Carolyn Pratt of the University of North Carolina General Counsel's Office. Also on the phone with us is Vivek Suri of Jones Day.

THE COURT: And how about for the State of North Carolina and the Governor, Governor McCrory?

1           MR. BOWERS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. This is 2 Butch Bowers. It is good to be with you again. I am here on 3 behalf of the Governor of the state and Secretary Perry, along 4 with Bob Stevens, Lindsey Wakely, and Jonathan Harris. All 5 three are from the Office of the Governor.

6           THE COURT: All right. And do I have the -- I guess 7 it's the intervenors -- proposed intervenors at this time?

8           MR. DUNCAN: Yes, Your Honor, good afternoon. This 9 is Kyle Duncan, and I'm joined by my colleague, Gene Schaerr, 10 and also our local counsel, Robert Potter. We represent the 11 proposed intervenors in this action, who are President Pro Tem
12 Phil Berger and the House Speaker, Tim Moore.

13           THE COURT: All right. Is there anybody else on the 14 phone that has not made an introduction?

15           All right. Hearing none, thank you for setting time
16 aside on short notice. Four or five days ago, maybe six days
17 ago, I think we -- I guess it looks like seven days ago, 18 June 10th, there was a filing of a motion as a joint motion to 19 enjoin the automatic suspension of funds received under the 20 Violence Against Women Act, Document 37 in the case.

21           I wanted to get you on the phone today because even 22 though it's presented to the Court as a consented-to motion, I
23 think there are some serious questions about whether the Court
24 has the authority to do what the parties are asking the Court
25 to do, and it looks like there is a deadline that's running. I

1 wanted to give everybody enough heads-up about that.

2           Simply put, it appears that under the statute that 3 whenever the attorney general files a civil action, which would 4 include the present action, that the Government must suspend 5 payments within 45 days of the filing of the action and that 6 the only exception to that is if the Court grants such 7 preliminary relief that may be available by law.

8           The cases in the Fourth Circuit and around the 9 country indicate that the standard to be applied is the 10 standard for a preliminary injunction. This presents an 11 unusual question in this case because there's no doubt that the 12 representation is that funds used here by the State of North 13 Carolina are for the extremely important services involving 14 programs that protect some of the most vulnerable in our 15 society, including these rape prevention programs.

16           What I am concerned about, though, is that what's 17 presented to me is, in essence, a consent agreement of the 18 parties that the Court should suspend the funds because that's 19 in the best public interest. My concern is that the statute 20 seems to clearly require the suspension of funds as a provision 21 of the statute that reflects the judgment of Congress, and I 22 have serious questions as to whether this Court has the 23 authority to stop that process merely by the entry of an order
24 because the parties agree to it in the case. I have a serious 25 question of whether that would override the will of Congress.

1           It seems, from what I can tell from my research, that 2 Congress drafted these laws to give the Federal Government
3 certain powers and to put certain pressures on other parties 4 who receive federal funds, and a condition of receipt seems to 5 be compliance with other important federal laws.

6           So I noticed in the briefing there was a statement on 7 page 6 of the brief that the likelihood-of-success factor is, 8 quote, of dubious value in light of the joint nature of the 9 motion. I'm not sure I can quite agree with that because, 10 based on what I understand the law to be, I would have to make 11 findings equivalent to those for preliminary relief under the 12 four-part preliminary injunction test, which would include a 13 finding that the Defendants can show likelihood of success on 14 the merits. It's not entirely clear to me, and I presume 15 otherwise that the Government is not conceding success on the 16 merits by filing this motion.

17           So it's postured in an unusual sense, and I am not 18 sure I'm in a position that I would even be able to sign a 19 consent order under these circumstances, certainly given the 20 present posture. The parties have not indicated to me my 21 authority to do that, and I have a concern that if I were 22 simply to do that because nobody disagrees with it, that that 23 would be overriding the will of Congress.

24           So in the absence of some other showing, it would 25 appear that I am not going to be in a position to grant the 1 relief the parties have moved for, and I wanted to give you the 2 opportunity to address that if you think there is some other 3 basis on which I could grant relief and to give you the 4 opportunity to brief that. Time seems to be of the essence.

5 I do note that this has been an issue that's been out 6 there for a while. I would have presumed that the parties were 7 aware of this earlier, but it does seem to be a significant 8 question and problem in the case; and if you read some of the 9 authorities, including the ones that the parties have cited, I 10 think the joint request has some significant issues.

11 Another concern I have is the showing of irreparable 12 harm under the case law. As important as these programs are, 13 and they appear to be extremely important, I don't have any 14 record before me that the elimination of funding for whatever 15 period of time would constitute irreparable harm. As a general 16 rule, the elimination of funding is not irreparable harm, and 17 there are many cases to that effect, including the ones the 18 parties have cited. That leaves open the possibility of 19 whether the programs themselves would have to shut down if the 20 funding were ended, and I don't know -- I don't have any facts
21 about what the funding situation is. I don't know if it's a 22 block grant for a period of time. I don't know when the next 23 funding would be. So I'm simply without information to make 24 any finding as to irreparable harm.

25 The last issue that concerns me is there's no doubt

1 the public interest would be served by the continuation of 2 these programs, but there is also a public interest alleged by 3 the Government, and that is the elimination of the H.B. 2 law
4 and the public interest served by the elimination of the law, 5 and there is zero discussion of that in the balancing of the 6 public interest here in the materials.

7           So I have significant questions about the posture of 8 the motion and my underlying authority to act, and I will be 9 happy to give you all more opportunity to brief it, if you
10 wish; but based on my research to date, I am not sure that you 11 will find anything that shows that I have the authority. If 12 that is the case, then the parties need to be prepared for 13 whatever consequences might flow from this, and that's why I 14 called you together today so you had a little bit of a 15 heads-up.

16           I would be happy to hear from any of you all if you 17 have some reaction to that.

18           MS. STOUGHTON: Your Honor, this is Corey Stoughton
19 from the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division. I want 20 to thank you for the heads-up and for the opportunity to 21 address these issues.

22           I will start by saying that there is no question that 23 Congress' intent to give the attorney general the tool of 24 automatic suspension should be taken into account and weighed 25 in the Court's decision.

1           THE COURT REPORTER: I'm having trouble hearing her,
2 Your Honor.

3           THE COURT: Hold on just a minute, please. We are 4 having a little audio problem here. If you have a volume on 5 your phone, too, if you could turn it up, that would be 6 helpful.

7           MS. STOUGHTON: Is it better now?

8           THE COURT: Let's try that. Thank you.

9           MS. STOUGHTON: Your Honor, I was just beginning by 10 saying that I think there's no question that Congress' intent 11 to give the attorney general the tool of automatic suspension
12 to be a factor in the Court's analysis, but, respectfully, I
13 think the Court's authority to undertake this is in the statute
14 itself because Congress didn't merely include the automatic 15 suspension provision, but expressly included a process by which 16 the Court would have the opportunity to weigh various factors 17 that should come into play in considering whether that was an 18 appropriate exercise of power in a particular instance and come 19 to a different conclusion, which I think reflects not only 20 Congress' clear intent that automatic suspension should not 21 happen in every case, but also a clear grant of authority to 22 the Court to consider the factors that should come into play in 23 considering whether it should.

24           So I think in terms of the direct problem and I think 25 the most clear problems raised of authority, that that

1 authority is there in the statute itself.

2 I think, you know, it's -- obviously, it's clear, as 3 you said, that Congress drafted those laws to give certain 4 powers of enforcement to the Federal Government, but I think 5 it's also equally clear that Congress left and only leaves it 6 to the Executive Branch the discretion to determine how to 7 exercise and execute those powers.

8 In this case, the United States has taken a clear 9 position that, in the first instance, it is preferable and we 10 hope adequate to accomplish the public interest in enforcing 11 civil rights laws by obtaining an injunction that will bring 12 the funding recipients, the VAWA funding recipients, into 13 compliance with VAWA without jeopardizing important interests 14 that are served by the funding. In that circumstance, where 15 the United States has made that judgment, I think it is 16 consistent with Congressional intent that, you know, while 17 Congress gave that power -- again, it both clearly gave the 18 executive some power to make decisions about which amongst its 19 enforcement tools are the right tool for the job and also 20 clearly gave the Court authority to consider that judgment and 21 exercise its own discretion on whether to grant preliminary 22 relief from the automatic suspension provision.

23 I could address the other points, but I thought maybe 24 I would step down and give any other party an opportunity to be 25 heard before I turn to the other issues raised around

1 irreparable harm and the public interest.

2           THE COURT: Does anybody else want to be heard as to 3 the authority? I note that the statute says that once the 4 attorney general files a civil action alleging a pattern or 5 practice and neither party has, after such filing, been granted 6 such preliminary relief with regard to the suspension or 7 payment of funds as may otherwise be available by law, then the 8 funds shall be suspended, and it's mandatory language.

9           MR. FRANCISCO: Your Honor, this is Noel Francisco 10 for the University of North Carolina and the Board of 11 Governors.

12           I would just echo the Department of Justice's 13 position that it does -- this statute does, at least in our 14 view, appear on its face to give the Court the authority to 15 award the preliminary relief. As the Court noted, the standard 16 is the standard for granting of preliminary injunction, but my 17 understanding of that standard in the Fourth Circuit is that -- 18 and also I think that, Your Honor, given that authority and the 19 standard that applies, and it's an equitable standard, we 20 believe that gives the Court sufficient authority to enter the 21 relief that --

22           THE COURT: How do I make a finding on likelihood of 23 success on the merits? I have no briefing on that so far in 24 this case.

25           MR. FRANCISCO: My understanding of the preliminary

1 injunction standard is that typically the Court can grant a 2 preliminary injunction based on essentially a sliding scale set 3 of factors. You don't need to make a finding on every one of 4 the factors. In this particular case, it would certainly seem 5 odd to reach the likelihood of success on the merits when the 6 other factors are the ones that, in our view, are what strongly 7 support the Government's position to exercise its discretion 8 not to withdraw the funds.

9 THE COURT: Anybody else wish to be heard?

10 MS. STOUGHTON: I don't mean to be dominating the 11 conversation, but a couple of things in addition, if I may.

12 First, again with respect to the authority, as you 13 pointed out, the language of the statute clearly is phrased in 14 mandatory terms, but I would urge the Court to see that 15 language and read it in the context of the entire statute, 16 including the provision granting the Court authority to issue 17 preliminary relief and to see that mandatory language as a 18 default, that it gives way, should the parties invoke the 19 process that's put into the statute, for seeking relief from 20 that provision and should the Court agree that under the 21 applicable standard that relief is warranted.

22 With regard to that standard, you know, I agree, Your 23 Honor. I understand that it is definitely the case the United 24 States does not concede and will not concede that the 25 Defendants have a likelihood of success on the merits of the 1 legal claim about H.B. 2's compliance with federal law, but in 2 this context what the briefing is meant to communicate is that 3 the logical application of the likelihood-of-success standard 4 is kind of a different beast than it might usually be, and 5 that's because in this case the relief that the United States

6 is seeking is not the suspension of funds in the first instance 7 or in the pleadings.

8           And so because of that, when a Court -- you know, for 9 example, in the cases from the '70s and '80s, when the Court
10 considered these questions in the context of the Phase Three 11 fact, and it was an opposed and contested motion, the argument
12 that was being made was that the funds should not be suspended 13 because at the end of the day the defendants in those cases 14 would prevail or were likely to prevail and, therefore, would 15 keep their federal funding because the cutoff for federal 16 funding was at issue.

17           In this case, that is not, at this stage, at issue;
18 and what the relief that the United States, the Plaintiffs, are 19 seeking is merely -- I mean, not merely. I don't mean to 20 diminish it, but it is not a funding cutoff. It is an 21 injunction to come into compliance with federal law. In that 22 sense, the question of success is not really about success on 23 the merits, but the success in keeping that funding and the 24 logic of kind of ensuring -- which I'm sure Congress had in 25 mind, the continuity of funding, if you are going to keep the

1 funding, at the end of the day is important, and I think that 2 interest remains the case here.

3           And so although I recognize this, I'm also going to 4 recognize and acknowledge that we don't have authority for 5 citing this, that the reason for that, of course, is because, 6 frankly, this hasn't been done before, and so the Court is 7 considering this in first impression; and so that was our 8 effort to kind of translate the meaning and import of the 9 likelihood-of-success standard into this novel context.

10           I did also want to address the question of 11 irreparable harm, and, you know, we had taken the position in 12 the pleadings that the question of irreparable harm would be 13 evident from the important purposes served by the funding and 14 the natural implication that interruptions in funding would be 15 disruptive toward the important goals of those programs; but I 16 will say if the Court is unsatisfied with that, I would ask for 17 the opportunity to provide some additional factual evidence 18 pertaining to the specific, as the Court seems to urge, 19 purposes that the funding is put towards, and we could obtain 20 perhaps a declaration or some kind of statement from -- I mean, 21 on our side, I'm sure we could obtain it from the OVW, the 22 Office on Violence Against Women --

23           THE COURT: Hold on just a minute. We're having 24 difficulty hearing when you go a little bit fast. So I am 25 going to have to ask you, Ms. Stoughton, if you don't mind just

1 to try to speak a little more slowly because we are having 2 audio issues here. Thank you.

3 MS. STOUGHTON: I apologize. I was just stating our 4 request to -- if the Court was willing to consider it, to 5 supplement the record on the question of irreparable harm, and 6 it may be that some of the other parties to the other motion 7 might want to do that as well.

8 THE COURT: Does anybody else wish to be heard this 9 afternoon?

10 Hearing none, I would be happy to give you additional 11 time to brief it. That's the precise reason I wanted to get 12 you on the phone today because I entertain serious concerns 13 about the relief requested. I don't doubt the motivation. I'm 14 doubting my authority. I can't act just because the parties
15 agree to something, particularly when Congress has reached a 16 determination as to how something should be done, and the 17 statute to me seems to be pretty clear. In fact, the 18 regulations implementing the statute make clear that the 19 standard for preliminary relief under the statute is the 20 standard for a preliminary injunction. In order to obtain a 21 preliminary injunction in the Fourth Circuit, you have to show 22 the likelihood of success on the merits, among other factors.

23 So if you want to brief it some more, I would be 24 happy to have you brief the various issues you think are 25 important, but I am concerned that I have the authority to

1 enter the requested relief. If you have any example where any 2 court has ever granted such relief, I would very much like to 3 see that. I would be surprised if there were any because I 4 think Congress wrote the statute, as far as I can tell, to give 5 the Government tremendous leverage, and that's why there's a 6 mandatory directive about suspending funds, which encourages 7 folks to work issues out; and once the Government decides to 8 file a civil action, then it kicks in the machinery of the 9 statute.

10 I understand that the United States has tremendous 11 discretion to exercise. A lot of the discretion to exercise, 12 of course, is in whether to bring a case; but once it's 13 brought, my understanding is that the Government enjoys this 14 tremendous leverage under the statute, and unless -- and not 15 only enjoys it, but Congress has demanded that it be used, and 16 I need some more indication from the parties as to my authority 17 to rule otherwise even with the parties' agreement. So I would 18 suggest you focus on the Fourth Circuit standard for 19 preliminary injunction whether there is, in fact, a need to 20 show likelihood of success on the merits. It's my current 21 understanding that that would need to be shown.

22 I'll be happy to entertain any more briefing and any 23 evidence on the irreparable harm point and the funding issue 24 and any other issue the parties want to address. If I'm 25 persuaded that there's grounds to enter it, I will enter the

1 order. I am not opposed to it by any means, but I'm concerned, 2 based on all my independent research and what the parties cited 3 to me, which was not very much, that everybody's assuming 4 something that seems to be contrary to the plain language of 5 the statute.

6           So if you have any case law where injunctive relief 7 was granted in the Fourth Circuit without any showing of 8 likelihood of success on the merits or without any finding as 9 to that, then, as well, I would like to see that.

10           I don't know where this will leave things if, for 11 some reason, I am ultimately not persuaded. I want you all to 12 at least have it on your radar. It seems that this issue
13 arises because of the Violence Against Women Act claim here. I 14 don't know if that leaves -- it may require procedural 15 responses from the parties. The options are all available to 16 the parties, however they want to do it, but the 45 days is 17 running. I think it expires next Thursday, and as I said, I'm 18 concerned that I don't have the authority to enter this.

19           So I would suggest -- if you want to brief additional 20 matters, you are welcome to brief it jointly or separately, but 21 I would suggest you have something filed by close of business 22 on Monday, and I would be happy to consider it; and if there is 23 a need for some kind of hearing, I would be happy to do that.

24           It's an important issue, but it may be that if I 25 don't -- if I'm not persuaded and if you conclude that the

1 authority may not be as clear as you had hoped it to be, then I
2 think you need to start making contingency plans as to how you 3 are going to deal with this issue. I have no idea based on 4 this record how significant the funding is and what the 5 ramifications would be, but you all certainly need to put that 6 on your radar. Either additional funds need to be found 7 somewhere else or -- you know, you have a myriad of options of 8 dealing with it, but I certainly wanted you all not to be 9 surprised if something like that were to happen.

10           So I will look for whatever you file by the end of 11 the day on Monday; and if you believe we need to have some type 12 of hearing, you're welcome to put a request in for that, and 13 I'll be happy to try to convene everybody again after that and 14 before the deadline.

15           Any other questions or anything further from anyone?
16 I'm not sure, Ms. Stoughton, I am yet persuaded as to your 17 interpretation of the statute. It seems to be pretty 18 straightforward and require the elimination of funding unless 19 there is a grant of preliminary relief. I don't know what 20 other escape valve there is from the statute. If you have any 21 authority for that, I would be very interested in seeing it. I 22 need to know what my options are rather than "just because the 23 parties have agreed to it" because that doesn't seem to fit, at 24 least as I see it, yet with the statute.

25           All right. Thank you all very much. I look forward

1 to whatever you can provide to me by close of business on 2 Monday. Thank you.
